

Carol Frazey grew up on a farm where her parents worked hard to make a living and protect their land for the next generation. She is a business owner, a former teacher, the mother of two teenagers who attend Sehome High School, and her husband is an instructor at Whatcom Community College.

Affordable Housing

Whatcom County families are having difficulty finding affordable housing. We need to allow denser housing developments to combat urban sprawl. Let's bring more communities to the table to find more fiscally responsible solutions so that our working families can afford to stay in Whatcom County.

Local Businesses

Working with local governments, businesses, and community organizations, we can work together to guide Whatcom County's growth to provide living-wage jobs for ourselves and future generations. As a Council Member, I will listen and seek advice to learn what we can do as a community to support current businesses and attract new businesses to our county.

Public Lands

Our public lands and recreational opportunities are an important part of Whatcom's economy, health, and community. Recreation provides an economic contribution of $585 million annually. Finding ways to fund and purchase parkland will help our community, economy, and maintain the beauty of Whatcom County.
