Complaint Description
Glen Morgan (Wed, 27 Oct 2021 at 2:51 PM) To whom it may concern, It has come to my attention that Northwest Passage Consulting, LLC and it's owner, Christian Sinderman have chosen to violate Washington State's campaign finance laws (RCW 42.17A). The specific violations are as follows: 1) Failure to properly register as a political committee (Violation of RCW 42.17A.205) Attached is a copy of a mailer recently sent to voters in San Juan County. The Mailer is clearly an Independent Expenditure in favor of a variety of local charter amendments proposed by the San Juan Charter Commission controlled and directed by disgraced former 40th Leg. District State Senator Kevin Ranker (who was forced to resign from the Washington State Legislature in January of 2019, due to a #Metoo sexual harassment scandal which became public knowledge in 2018 – see article attached). Northwest Passage Consulting, LLC (owned by Christian Sinderman, it's only listed officer) is identified as the primary sponsor of this mailer and independent expenditure. However, in addition to this secretive Seattle-based corporation, the mailer also identified the top5 donors, including the following: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Janet Alderton</li> <li>2. Maureen See, San Juan County Charter Commissioner</li> <li>3. Jane Fuller, San Juan County Charter Commissioner</li> <li>4. Kyle Davies, San Juan County Charter Commissioner</li> <li>5. Janet Brownell, San Juan County Charter Commissioner</li> </ol> The proper way to have launched this Seattle-based corporate sponsored political mailer in the last few weeks of an election campaign would be for this collection of people to create a Political Action Committee as required under RCW 42.17A.205. However, for some weird and strange reason, they failed to do so. Weirdly enough, the mailer says "Paid for by" and then lists Northwest Passage Consulting, yet it clearly identifies the top five contributors as listed above, failing to list either Christian Sinderman or Northwest Passage Consulting, LLC as one of the top 5 contributors to this shady Seattle-based corporate mailer. Please note, if this corporation decided to violate RCW 42.17A.205, then they also violated RCW 42.17A.210 and RCW 42.17A.215. Which then leads to the next clear violation of the state's campaign finance laws. 2) Failure to properly disclose contributions of top 5 (or more) donors on the independent expenditure C-6 report (Violation of RCW 42.17A.260, RCW 42.17A.265, RCW 42.17A.305(1)(b)(ii), WAC 39-16-063(4), WAC 390-16-060) This Seattle based corporation did file an independent expenditure report (See PDC Tracking #11005, a C-6 report dated October 20, 2021 – see attached). However, when you look at page 2, Section 5, all the information for the true donors to this political campaign is left blank. It has been concealed from the public.

This is a notable violation since not only was this violation committed within a few weeks of the November election date, and while the mailer itself identifies at least 5 top donors, the C-6 conceals how much these top 5 donors contributed to the mailer, and it conceals other secret donors who might remain concealed from the public because they either contributed less than these listed top 5, or the same amount, but were concealed from the top5 list. For example, it would be reasonable for the sponsors of this corporately funded Seattle mailer to desire to conceal the identity of disgraced former State Senator Kevin Ranker due to his unsavory history of sexual harassment and resignation from the state senate in 2019. Even if Kevin Ranker had contributed the same amount as the other top 5 listed contributors, this secretive Seattle corporation run by Christian Sinderman could legally keep Ranker's name off the mailer, but on this C-6 report, he would be required to reveal the otherwise concealed identity (See RCW 42.17A.305 (1)(b)(ii)).

Keep in mind, if this Corporation had established a PAC as required by RCW 42.17A.205 and they were properly filing their C-3 contribution and C-4 expenditure reports timely and correctly with the PDC (as required by RCW 42.17A.240 and .235), then they could be exempt from providing the donor information on the C-6 report because it would already be included on the C-3 reports. However, they chose not to do this, presuming they could keep everything as secretive as possible.

What is particularly troubling about these violations in this specific case is the fact that Christian Sinderman clearly knows better than this. He is one of the most highly compensated political consultants and the secretive corporation he manages in Seattle has been involved in hundreds, if not thousands of political campaigns in Washington State. He knows the law, and his staff know the law, and they chose to break the law regardless.

It should also be noted that compliance with the law would have been very easy and would only require that they report the truth about how much each donor contributed (the whole point of Washington State's campaign finance laws in the first place) and they had two options to do this. Either set up a PAC like everyone else who gets involved in the political process and just report the donor data on the C-3 report, or they could have stuck with the weird secretive corporate sponsorship program and provided the information correctly on the C-6. The form is right there, impossible to miss.

However, they chose to willfully break the law anyway with the presumption that nobody would notice.

The PDC staff should take this violation seriously, otherwise, a failure to enforce the law in this instance will provide a roadmap for further lawbreaking in the future.

This is not a hard violation to figure out and a financial penalty should be levied in this case. These are all experienced elected officials and a very experienced secretive Seattle-based corporation.

Even the political insiders should have to follow the same laws imposed on everyone else.

Best Regards,

Glen Morgan

What impact does the alleged violation(s) have on the public?

The public has a right to know who is funding last minute secretive independent political expenditures, and how much they are contributing to this effort. It is particularly egregious to conceal this information behind a wealthy Seattle-based corporation facade. These are all elected officials and very experienced political consultants. These violations are willful and done in a manner to conceal the truth from the public.

Democrat Senator Kevin Ranker resigns in disgrace, multiple investigations continue

By Glen Morgan - January 14, 2019

Democrat Senator Kevin Ranker resigned from the Washington State senate over the weekend

Democrat State Senator Ranker (40th LD) is bolting from the Washington State Senate under a cloud of investigations into sexual harassment and other problems like tax fraud and campaign finance violations

Over the weekend, Washington State Senator Kevin Ranker (Democrat, 40th Legislative District) officially resigned his seat (See story background linked here and here). Ranker's email resignation statement sent Saturday is linked here. The primary motivation for his resignation was the inevitable fallout from the sexual harassment investigation being conducted by the Washington State Senate into accusations filed by his former legislative aide and former legislative liaison for the Washington State Fish and Wildlife Department. Her accusations included claims that Senator Ranker threatened to cut the budget for the agency unless she renewed sexual relations with him. Senator Ranker is married and was married at the time of the original affair.

Theoretically, the investigation into his behavior continues under the new process developed and championed by Senator Ranker himself in the last legislative session. However, most observers expect this investigation to ratchet down and become a footnote with Senator Ranker's resignation. In addition, this author helped initiate a few additional investigations of Senator Ranker's behavior in other areas. The first was with the Washington State Department of Revenue for falsifying at least one Real Estate Excise Tax form submitted to the DOR for the purpose of committing tax fraud (see article here). The second was with the Washington State Public Disclosure Commission for concealing his property assets on his Financial Disclosure Reports (see complaint linked here and earlier complaint filed against him in 2017 by this author linked here).

Lost in the sexual harassment investigation into Ranker's past actions is the apparently cavalier attitude it reveals about how agency budgets are negotiated in Olympia. This still seems like a much bigger story than just another story about a corrupt politician in Olympia. When stories first broke about former Democrat legislator Brendan Williams in late 2017 (Olympia – 22nd Legislative District), they generally involved Representative Williams prolifically harassing a variety of female lobbyists working at the State Capital. The concerns raised in all these cases involve the fear expressed by the women that their careers, their jobs, and the interests they represented were placed in jeopardy depending on how they responded to Brendan William's harassment. Similarly the investigation into Ranker's harassment involve the open threat of budget cuts or job termination based on sexual (or lack thereof) favors.

Senator Kevin Ranker may get away with most of his violations and only receive a slap on the wrist. He has reliably pushed the most extreme Leftist agenda in his role as a Democratic Party politician, as a San Juan County Commissioner, as the former Executive Director of the Friends of the San Juans, and as an Evergreen College student. He is not a Republican or a conservative, so he gets kid glove treatment and the general whitewash that is traditionally accorded the political insiders from the ruling party in Olympia (remember, according to the Ann Larson complaint, she originally brought these issues up back in 2011, but they were ignored and vanished – it only was made public when she recently sent them to the Governor's office).

Who gets appointed to Ranker's vacant seat?

Senator Ranker's resignation is sure to initiate a feeding frenzy within the Democratic Party as they fight over the nomination process, first at the PCO level, and then when the elected councilmembers from San Juan County and Whatcom County and the commissioners from Skagit County convene to make the final appointment. Backroom negotiating has been occurring quietly for months now, but with the official announcement of Ranker's resignation, the real fight begins. Traditionally, when a Senator resigns or leaves office early, the appointment is most likely going to be a sitting legislator in that district of the same party.

For example, this has happened recently in the 31st Legislative District when Republican Senator Pam Roach was elected to the Pierce County Council in 2016 and recently elected Representative Phil Fortunato was appointed to fill her seat. Another example includes the 28th Legislative District when Republican Senator Mike Carrell died in 2013 and Representative Steve O'Ban was appointed to fill this seat and. Another example is the 2017 appointment of Republican Senator Brian Dansel in the 7th Legislative District whose seat was filled by the appointment of Representative Shelly Short. There are many other examples. If this tradition continues in the Ranker resignation situation, then this nomination and vote process will occur twice – first with the vacated Senate seat, and secondly with the newly vacated Legislative seat.

Jeff Morris, attempting to explain how large his violations of the state's campaign finances were Democrat state Representative Jeff Morris is the senior legislator in the 40th district. This author filed a PDC complaint against Representative Morris \(linked here\), which resulted in a lawsuit filed by the AG against him (linked here), which resulted in a paddy-cake settlement (linked here). To read more about this case go here. Representative Morris is also currently under investigation for harassment, although this investigation appears to be less significant or sensational than the Ranker sexual harassment investigation. There has been some speculation that this investigation is really part of a Democratic Party intramural squabble and was triggered recently in an effort to reduce the chance that Morris could be appointed to the vacant seat. All these factors reduce the likelihood that Representative Morris would be appointed to Ranker's vacant seat.

Representative Debra Lekanoff (40th LD)

The most likely candidate to be appointed is the recently elected legislator from that district – Democrat Representative Debra Lekanoff. She was elected with 67% of the vote, and the recent successful election ensures her name familiarity with local voters. She is just as extreme as Senator Ranker on all the issues that matter (maximum taxes, supports growing the abusive administrative state, a strong supporter of Gang Green, etc). Assuming Lekanoff is appointed to Ranker's seat, then this means her legislative seat will also then be vacant and require another round of the appointment process.

Investigations, Political Insiders, and the cycle continues

Meanwhile, the investigations into Senator Ranker's various behavioral problems continues. Part of stepping down likely involved a negotiated end to the #Metoo investigation. His resignation is probably adequate for political insiders. The investigators are unlikely to explore any further the sex in exchange for agency state budget votes – THAT is a rock they won't want to turn over. The PDC will slap his wrist for his failure to properly comply with the law. The Department of Revenue is also likely to give him easy treatment for his attempt to evade taxes and his falsification of documents he provided to them in 2013.

If you have tracked scandals like this in the past, then you know full well that not everyone is equal under the law in Washington State. The political minority and disfavored will be persecuted. The politically correct will get kid glove treatment – if they are caught. However, it is still important to expose the truth and to pay attention. These are the same people who believe they are smarter than you, who demand that you be forced to pay more taxes, get offended when you don't trust them, and who believe they can dictate to you how to live your life because THEY clearly know better.
