

Jordan,

Following up to our phone conversation; below is a response to the complaint filed.

In 2023, I was a first time candidate and the filing process was completely new to me. At the end of my campaign, I shared the costs of a mailer with another local candidate (Kara Macias), which led to a more complicated reporting process. To try and ensure that I was completing the reporting accurately, I contacted the PDC and worked with the support team to file the reports in the fashion that I did. During my last call with the support team, I was told the reports were accurate and the way the PDC wanted them to be even though they showed a negative balance. As discussed, the actual balance of my campaign account is not negative, but rather is effectively zeroed out. At present, there is $0.07 left in the account. If you would like me to revisit and amend any reporting, I am happy to do so, but again I filed the reports as instructed on the phone and at the time of filing believed them to be correct and accurate.

Please let me know if you have any additional questions.

Regards,

Josh Kurcinka
