Hi Tabitha,

Alleged violation #1: We will amend the reports to include amounts from the popular truck rental site Handy Andy for the 15' box truck. See attached screenshot of the monthly (28-day) quote. Please note that this truck is advertised and has been advertised for years as available to the general public and the community to use for FREE. Regarding the 2001 Toyota Tacoma. There are no real comparable rates because the vehicles quoted are 20 years newer. Turo and other sites like Enterprise range from $450-$600 per month for a newer Toyota Tacoma (2022-2024). We will amend the report accordingly with these best guestimates. When we spoke on the phone, you mentioned that the "sponsored by" details were not displayed on the Toyota. I don't see this mentioned in this alleged violation, and they are, in fact, located on the lower right of the logo (photo you supplied). In case they might be too small, I have re-labeled with much larger print. See attached photo.

Alleged violation #2: I have a confidential Temporary Use License Agreement that was executed before the truck was located on the vacant, derelict gas station lot. The average parking rates in the Puget Sound region vary, but generally, expect to pay between $ $15-$30 per 24 hours for off-street parking, according to Parkopedia. I would suggest that a vacant, overgrown, unsecured lot will be on the lower end of this average. I will add that figure to the amended reports.

Alleged violation #3: I believe the Woodinville Chamber of Commerce may have labeled the parking spot incorrectly. See attached photos of the corrected signage after I brought it to their attention. I have also informed the Chamber that any future signage they produce must have the sponsorship disclosure language.

Thanks for your consideration and let me know if you need anything else clarified.
